RFID Explained

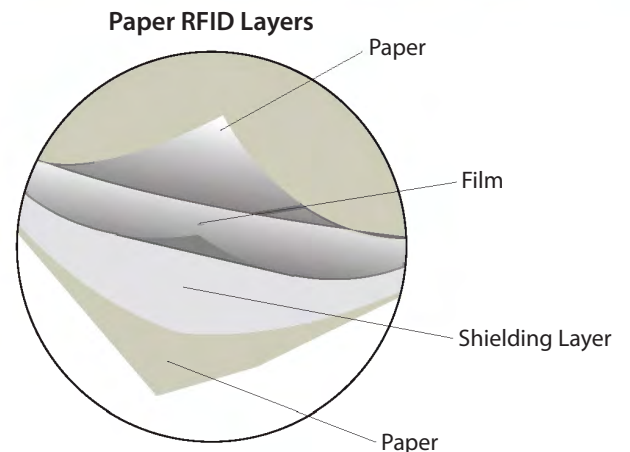

All passports since 2006, many credit and debit cards, enhanced drivers licenses, etc have a RFID (radio frequency identification) chip embedded in the card. This chip contains personal and account information necessary to complete transactions.

Wireless Identity Theft

RFID Skimming is a form of electronic theft which enables information from RFID based cards (including chip based cards) to be read and duplicated. Thieves are able to easily scan your card without physically touching it, referred to as digital pick pocketing.

Staying Protected

Our RFID blockers include a special metal alloy using a patented process to protect your data. FIPS 201 Approved.
