HOW CUSTOM SCULPTURED METAL HANDLES ARE MADE

Utica uses a die casting method which is a metal casting process that is characterized by forcing molten metal under high pressure into a mold cavity. The mold cavity is created using two hardened tool steel dies which have been machined into shape and work similarly to an injection mold during the process.

GENERAL INFORMATION • TERMS & CONDITIONS

Who buys knives . . .

The phrase we hear the most when doing trade shows is, I have no one to sell knives to. The question is, but do you? Knives are great for giveaways, corporate gifts and incentive programs. There are many markets that buy knives as they are a promotion that will last forever! We have a large variety of knives which includes pocket knives, multitools, and kitchen cutlery. The best thing about our company is that we specialize in cutlery. We have been in business for over 100 years and are still going strong. To give you some ideas we have listed several different markets that are currently purchasing knives along with what styles of knives they purchase.

Utica Cutlery Company uses 3 marking methods to mark their products. Below is an explanation of each.

1. Electro Chemical Etch:

This process creates a dark brown/black image on the metal surface of the blades or handles of our product. The image is transferred through a stencil with electrolyte solution and an electrical charge. The final product is a dark brown/black mark which is burned into the surface layer of the metal.

2. Laser Engraving:

This process entails the use of a gas mixture, CO2 laser which creates a cutting beam, that will engrave into our wood, plastic, Poly-Pro or metal surfaces. The final finish color or shading varies and is largely based on the make-up and consistency of the wood, plastic and anodized surface.

3. Pad Printing:

This process uses a flexible silicon rubber transfer pad that picks up a film of the ink from a photo-etched printing plate and transfers it to a 3 dimensional part surface. We can transfer up to 4 colors to our wood, plastic or metal products.
